The Crypt of Canterbury Cathedral:
ITS ARCHITECTURE, ITS HISTORY, AND ITS FRESCOES.

BY W. A. SCOTT ROBERTSON, M.A.,
Honorary Canon of Canterbury.

ATHENÆUM, April 16th, 1881, p. 531.

"To the Architectural History of Canterbury Cathedral, by that master in Archaeological studies, Professor Willis, this elaborate essay of the Canon's is no unworthy supplement. It is to the credit of Canon Scott Robertson that, although he has followed in the steps of Willis, he has not blindly accepted all his dicta, or those of others who have dealt with parts of the history and the architectural details of Prior Ernulf's majestic crypt (1096-1100) and its somewhat later adjuncts. . . . An elaborate account of the carved capitals of the crypt and its chapels follows, and Canon Robertson also gives details about the tombs in them. . . . Very curious and elaborate painted decorations in its vault are still among the most precious remains of Early English art in existence. A careful and intelligible description of these pictures will be found in this book."

THE ANTIQUARY for May, 1881, p. 224.

"Canon Scott Robertson has now come forward to remedy this omission, and he has produced a most valuable history of the crypt in all its details, which is fully illustrated with plates of the carved capitals of columns, and of the frescoes. . . . It is not easy in a short notice to do anything like justice to the amount of sound work exhibited in this book, but we may safely say that it is one which must be consulted by all interested in ecclesiastical architecture."

THE ACADEMY, January 22nd, 1881, p. 67.

"This is a most careful and thorough account of a part of Canterbury Cathedral which is not much known, though it contains a good deal that is of special interest."

CHURCH TIMES, Feb. 18th, 1881, p. 103.

"Canon Scott Robertson, in a handsome volume, has now brought into public notice a portion of the church which is very inadequately known to Churchmen, or even to architectural connoisseurs. His monograph is very careful and full; but its speciality is an elaborate account of the mural paintings in the apse of St. Gabriel's Chapel. Mr. Robertson gives descriptions and drawings by most competent hands."
